Last evening, it was raining heavily. I was returning home after school. The weather was windy. The strong wind was blowing. It resulted in a terrific accident between nature and man. What happened actually was that someone had parked his car on the pavement. Suddenly a huge Neem tree fell down on the pavement due to strong wind smashing the car completely. Fortunately, there was no loss of life as the car was empty. The accident caused huge traffic chaos on the road. The car owner appeared to be missing as no one had stepped ahead to claim the car. There was traffic confusion. Traffic stood still. About half an hour the police came and cleared the traffic. The situation was taken under control.
