Short essay on My Neighbour

The neighbour is the nearest person with whom one has social contact. They are partners in one's sorrows and joys. Having a good neighbour is a blessing and a bad neighbour is a curse. This is our good luck that our neighbours are decent.

Our nearest neighbour is Mr. Rajesh Sharma. His house is next to ours. He has good manners and very sweet nature. We always find him with a smiling face. He has three sons and a daughter. Every member of his family is cultured and well mannered. They are always ready for any type of help to their neighbours.

Mr. Sharma is a professor at the university. He leaves for the university at 10 a.m. and generally returns home by 5 p.m. He is a man of simple living and high thinking. In the morning and evening time, you will generally find him wearing khadi kurta pajama. He is fond of playing chess. He is a man with liberal views. Everyone in the colony has high regard for him. He is the President of Colony Welfare Society.

Mrs. Sharma is a very gentle and pious lady. She is God-fearing and a good-natured lady. She is very humble. Like her husband, she is very popular among the women of the colony.

His three sons are also well behaved. The youngest one is my class fellow and the other two are students of the first and third year in Engineering college. Their daughter is very small and soft-spoken

We are fortunate enough to have good neighbours like them.
