Essay on If I Were a Millionaire

Everyone has a desire to be a millionaire. I have also a desire to become a millionaire. Would that I were a millionaire! If I win a lottery and become a millionaire, I would spend the money. I purchase some necessary things for my parents.

I shall help the poor, the sick, and the needy. I shall open schools for the poor. There will no fee for the poor students.

I find that many people still die for want of proper medical aid. I would, therefore, open a dispensary for the poor. This would save the poor from the jaws of death.

I find that there is at present no provision for the support of the orphans and the widows. I would, therefore, lose no time in opening an orphanage and a widow house. They will work there and live honorably.

This is how I shall make use of this money. There may be, people will laugh at me for spending my money in this manner but they perhaps do not realise that the inner happiness that a man gets out of helping the poor and the needy is something more valuable.
