Essay on festival of Holi for in 200 to 250 words

Many festivals are celebrated in our country. The Holi festival is one of them. Holi is a festival of colours. It is an important festival of the Hindus. It is held at the beginning of spring. Nature seems to awake from her deep sleep. Trees bring forth new leaves. Flowers begin to bloom.

On this day people begin moving about in the streets, wearing coloured cloths and having dry powder colours in hand. They rubbed gulal and colours on the faces of their friends and relatives and wish them a happy and prosperous life. Children go about carrying springs full of coloured water which they sprinkle on the clothes of passersby. They jump, dance, and make merry. There is a spirit of joy in every heart. Those, who do not want to be harassed, keep indoors. But very often they are not spared and are washed in coloured water, against their will.

But some people celebrate Holi in a very indecent way. They drink wine and create a fuss. They quarrel and insult others. They throw mud and dirt on others. Such evils should be stopped. Festivals should be celebrated to bring joy and mirth instead of creating problems for the people.
