

Narrative Essay on Childhood Memory

Introduction

Childhood memories are an important part of our life. The happiest, incredible and unforgettable memories of childhood are quite hard to stop remembering. Childhood is the best part of everybody's life. Childhood is the best stage of human life where they can spend time without any fear and stress. All of us have had that wonderful time. The excellent part of childhood is spending time with fellow kids. All of us have some good and some horrific memories that we can don't forget from childhood.

There are plenty of memories that we've forgotten and some we can recall slightly. I'm going to share some memories from my childhood that I still can't forget. I assume these are the golden memories and the time turned into valuable. Childhood is the most exciting and exquisite part of our life. It's far from that phase of our lives when we were free from sorrows and issues. We had no job or whatever to fear about.

Our cherished ones were around us all the time. Mother was there to feed and hug us when we were unwell, dad was there to bring our favourite toys and our buddies lived next to our house. The whole thing was perfect and excellent.

Why do childhood memories matter?

You can never forget childhood memories with friends. If someone remembers the happiest and funniest childhood memories or just thinks of the best 10 childhood memories, there are plenty of them! The greatest experience in our life, if we've ever had, is the childhood period.

Our childhood memories play an essential role in our life. They form our destiny and perspective towards life.

If a person experiences an amazing childhood then his personality could be jolly and happy. If a person has an awful experience of his childhood then that experience will stay with him even in adulthood.

What a person learns in his childhood usually stays with him. If he has been taught the significance of discipline, punctuality, ethics, and values since childhood then these values will stay with him throughout his life.

Childhood memories are highly inspired by family and their values, experiences, and interests. They frequently reflect a child's early skill for remembering things. They can range from the banal to the elegant, from fun to touch, however, most of them are fuzzy and elusive, often misguided and sometimes downright fabricated.

My childhood memories:

I've been raised in a big circle of family with lots of loving individuals. I've all the lovely memories with them. I especially need to mention my grandmother. She turned into an awesome lady. I have one sibling and we used to play in the park in front of my house.

My father bought us different kinds of toys and playing gadgets. I have loved playing cricket since childhood and still play that regularly. My little sister was like my assistant. She used to be a part of every activity that I do.

We used to steal fruits from the garden that my grandma made. I still can sense the smell and taste of those fruits when I look back at the memories. My dad was a very busy man, but still, he spent sufficient time with us. I can recall a picnic at a zoo where the whole family went.

My mother took some delicious food there. I can't recall precisely what the dishes had been, but they were great in taste. That was an exceptional day. We sometimes visited our native village and that was a fine moment for me and my cousins.

We got sufficient space to run, play soccer, and do all the stuff that we can't do in the town. When I remember my childhood, that takes a large part there. Because I've so many brilliant memories related to village life.

My First Day at school:

The first day at school is a lovely memory that I can recall clearly. The day was a very special event for me. I was very excited. I've been getting ready for school and working very hard for three months. My mother was also working very hard to teach me all the simple things including alphabets and some rhymes.

I was quite confident and I got my new school dress, school bag, some books, and new shoes. Finally, the day came when I went to school. This is a pretty famous school in the city. My parents took me to the principal's room.

He was a gentleman and he greeted us properly and asked us to sit down. I can recall he asked me some simple questions and I answered them confidently. He called an assistant staff and sent me to my classroom. A class was taking place there already and I joined it.

There were many boys and girls of my age and I made a few friends on the first day. I went back and found my parents awaiting me. That was a pleasant experience for me. I will never forget that day. My parents were very supportive and that's why the whole thing was easy for me.

Conclusion:

Childhood memories are very essential in our life. We should remind ourselves of all the lovely moments. Whenever we recall our childhood memories it makes us laugh and we feel very joyful.
